I got assigned to do the letter A. There are many ways that the letter A can relate with the ABC's of Michigan. The letter A can be for learning by asking questions and other things that can help you learn. We wanted the letters to be aesthetic to whoever walks into the building and have the letters stick out and have the letters be noticeable. When we were working on the ornaments I learned how to work as a team, I also learned how to paper mache which I didn't know how to do, which now I do.

One of the most important ways of learning is discovery. Discovery. Think of the meaning of this word. Discovery is so very important, that if we had not discovered it, this word would not exist. Most words just slip over our tongues, without meaning or thought, but 'discovery' is much different. When it was in the process of creating my chosen letter - D - the word 'discovery' kept flashing through my mind, when this amazing thought appeared in my head, we use discovery every day! You see, when I was creating my letter "D" I was discovering things I was discovering new, better ways to glue my letter together. Discovery - learning, is essential in life. In this project, we also used - and discovered - new artistic skills. For example, when we began this project, all of our letters were 2D. However, in the end, they were all 3D. Personally, I think it is amazing that someone can take one thing, and make it look incredible - like when we made all of our letters the same texture and size. In the fantastic world of art, there are many things to learn, to create, to discover. I have learned many things from art - maybe it's time you consider this wonderful subject!

about the ways of learning from the letter C. Like creating, curiosity, common sense, and caring. For example, curiosity for wondering about things.

Some strategies we used were measuring for the width of the letter. We also brainstormed for our idea. Also we practiced it.

Some artistic ideas we did were unity. So the letters were the same size. Also we made the texture smooth with paper glue. Then for balance we used hooks.

I learned that the letter I has a lot to do with our alphabet. If it weren't for the letter "I" we would not be able to spell and say many of the words that we do.

I also learned how to take a plain 2D object and turn it into a 3D object with just some cardboard and glue. I also had fun learning with my letter.

I also got to learn about texture and creating it. The texture of the cardboard was smooth and with the paper you could make a smooth or rough texture. The patterns we used to decorate our letters were fun too.

it. All of this is for my abc letter.

"Artistic skills" I used to make my letter R. used a 2D outline to become 3D, made texture smooth from the paper mache. Had unity for the alphabet for our class. I made it Aesthetic by making it neat with good

T shows many ways of learning.
Some ways of learning are Teaching, Trying, thinking and teamwork. An example of this is that for teaching you learn how to teach.

The learning strategy we used started with brainstorming. The class decided to make the ornaments letters. Then we thought about how to make them. Then we ended by painting them.

We used multiple artistic skills.
We made the letters 2D to 3D.
We also made the texture smooth.
Then we balanced them with hooks.

There are many ways of learning. To me listening is the best. The letter I have been given to create is L. L can stand for learning and listening. Listening to me is the best because you can have someone talk to you, outloud and have someone explain what you are learning. There are many ways of learning, it differs on how you learn best.

Learning strategies that I have used to make my letter is first by brainstorming. Then I made my letter and made it 3D. Then we have to decorate the letters on how we think it describes the ABC's of learning.

An Artistic skill we have used was to make our letters 3D. We also used an element called Texture because we wanted the letters to be smooth. We want are letters to be eye catching and unique. We want to help kids realize that learning is important and that there are many ways to learn.

I got the letter T for the class of many ways of carving. In class we talked about how people have during school on our work and to others. We also talked about how we figure things out as we learn. If you are serious about learning something you'll eventually figure it out.

While I worked on these projects I learned a few things. I learned how to paper mache, draw straight letters, measure the cardboard and build the cities. I also learned how to paint better too.

I learned how to make 2-D become 3-D. It's confusing but right. It gives us a little more skill. You have to have the surface smooth, we have to have good craftsmanship and readiness to do this project.

For this project I chose the letter "Y". This letter stands for yearning, which stands for knowledge. To me yearning is a way of learning because "yearning" is wanting to learn. Wanting to learn helps in education since when we tend to want we tend to follow thru with them.

Making this letter for this project included several preparations, the first things we did was brain storming, then we measured, drew the letters on white construction paper and built up letters with cardboard and used the method of paper mache for these letters so they would look good for the tree in your residents. The final thing that we did was paint and decorate them so they would look presentable.

The "Artistic Skill" that was included in this project was to make a two dimensional figure into a three dimensional figure. From paper, to tracing on cardboard and a smooth coat of paper mache. The rhythm and movement of the pattern you chose to have on that tree will fit so perfectly on there the way that you will want it.

The letter E is a great letter and has everything to do with learning and education. Education begins with E. Without education there are very few jobs that would pay enough for me to live.

The strategies I used to make my letter E were to brainstorm what E means. I measured to have the exact measurements. Then I drew my letter, and try to be as close as cardboard. Then we paper marbled it. We had to use clean water & have patience while working.

The art skills I learned were 2D (shape on paper) then 3D (sculpture form). To make my letter look nice I wanted the texture to be smooth and clean. I wanted to balance the back so it was even. We all had to use unity and teamwork with constructive criticism to make our letters aesthetic.

The Strategy I used was first brainstorming, I then measured and drew my letter. Next I ~~experiminted~~ with paper mache. Finally I decorated and printed my letter.

During the process I learned to make a shape into a form. In other words I made a 2D drawing into a 3D form. I had to make the texture very smooth. I also tried to make it neat and aesthetically pleasing. Also I made it balanced so it would hang straight on a hook.

Learning is imperative to a greater tomorrow and there are many ways to do it. The letter I created was "J". I designed the letter "J" because it represents job shadowing. People can learn from job shadowing by watching and observing other people work and reveal good work ethics.

To create our letters we brainstormed and measured then drew our letters on white paper. After cutting out the letters we built them and were enabled to try a new media called paper mache. Acrylic paint was another new media we used to decorate our letters.

We were able to begin with a 2d or two dimensional project and turn it into a 3-d or three dimensional project. We made the texture smooth.

People try and prove those guesses and learn some very interesting things in the process. While I worked on this project I learned to work as a team. We helped each other get supplies and give advice. When somebody was confused, we would help them understand it. I learned some new Artistic skills as well. We took 2D pictures (letters), and made a 3D sculpture with width and so on. We learned to make texture smooth or rough, to make it pleasing to the eye and nice to look at. ABC's of learning Learning, there are many ways of learning. Some people learn by reading, some people by watching other people do a job. Hopefully someone learns their abc's with our ornaments.

Some strategies that I used to make my letter was to brainstorm. Brainstorming helped out a lot on how to design my letter. We used cardboard and paper mache to build our letter.

During this activity I learned some valuable artistic skills. One main skill is texture, without it we wouldn't be able to get them to be smooth. Other examples were balance, unity, craftsmanship, neatness, and being aesthetic to see.
